WHAT TO EXPECT

WHAT WE WILL DO

- Monitor noise and dust and keep within permitted levels
- Provide regular updates

To facilitate the ongoing archaeology investigations and future utility works at Liverpool Street 2.4 metre high wooden hoardings will be installed around the Liverpool Street worksite from 9 July 2011. Cabins will also be installed on the site for site welfare and storing archaeological finds.

The site will be extended to include the northern pavement of Liverpool Street, between Blomfield Street and Old Broad Street, as shown in the diagram overleaf. This area is required initially for archaeological investigations which extend to the length and depth of this section of pavement and later for utilities works. As the site is very constrained it is likely that the hoarding will remain in place for the duration of the utility works, in order to maintain a safe working environment.

The pedestrian footpath on the southern side of Liverpool Street will be retained during this phase of works. However a weekend closure of the footpath on 16 and 17 July is required in order to replace the temporary hoardings with wooden ones. Localised archaeology investigations may require temporary reductions of the width of the footpath. Access to businesses will be retained.

Crossrail has appointed Vinci Construction UK to carry out the next phase of work at the Liverpool Street worksite. These works will include diverting utilities to make way for the Liverpool Street east ticket hall, and building a new substation and switch rooms for the London Underground station from the Blomfield Street worksite. Over the next two months, Vinci will be mobilising to site. Initially Vinci Construction UK will be working alongside Riney, Crossrail's archaeology contractor on the Liverpool Street worksite. Further information sheets will be issued to keep you informed.

Liverpool Street will remain closed to traffic between Blomfield Street and Old Broad Street until the Crossrail project completes in 2018. Please see the diagram overleaf for further information.
